AURANGABAD

235—A rise of 3 points

In January 1973, the Consumer Price Index Number for Working Class for the Aurangabad Centre with baseyear January to December 1961 equal to 100 was 235 being 3 points higher than that in the preceeding month. The index relates to the standard of life ascertained during the year 1958-59 family living survey at Aurangabad Centre.

The index number for the food group increased by 4 points to 268 due to a rise in the average prices of rice, jowar, karad oil, vanaspati and Zinga.

The index number for the fuel and light group remained stationery at 168.

The six monthly house rent survey ending December 1972 was conducted by the office of the Commissioner of Labour, Bombay. Accordingly the index number for housing increased by 5 points to 194.

The index number for the clothing and footwear group decreased by 3 points to 196 due to a fall in the prices of long cloth and coloured fabrics.

The index number for the Miscellaneous group remained stationary at 177.

FINAL INDEX NUMBER—235.

—A rise of 3 points

In January 1973, the Consumer Price Index Number for Working Class for Nanded Centre with base January to December 1961 equal to 100 was 236, which is 3 points higher than that in the preceding month. The index relates to the standard of life ascertained during the year 1958-59 family living survey conducted in the Nanded Centre.

The index number for the food group increased by 5 points to 268 due to an increase in the average prices of jowar, groundnut oil, brinjals, tomatoes, other vegetables and a rise in the sub-group index number for mutton, fish and eggs.

The index number for the fuel and light group increased by 2 points to 177 due to an increase in the average price of kerosene oil.

The six monthly house-rent survey ending December 1972 was conducted in the office of the Commissioner of Labour, Bombay in the month of January 1973. Accordingly the house rent index number worked out at 141 i.e. the same as that utilised in the previous six months indices.

The index number for the clothing and footwear group decreased by 4 points to 209 due to the decrease in the prices of dhoti, cloth for trousers and long shirts.

The index number for the miscellaneous group remained stationary at 182.

MONTHLY PROGRESS REPORT FOR THE MONTH OF DECEMBER, 1972.

I. Employment situation in general in Maharashtra State for the month of December, 1972

There has been a fall in the number of vacancies notified to Employment Exchanges and the number of applicants placed by them during December 1972 as compared to the previous month.

Total vacancies notified to Employment Exchanges decreased to 6,006 from 7,351 in November 1972 and placements decreased to 2,932 from 3,596 in the last month.

Despite the overall fall in placements, there was a slight rise in the number of applicants placed in State Government and Quasi Government Establishments 1,115 applicants were placed in State Government Establishments, as against 1,071 in November 1972 and 666 applicants were placed in Quasi Government Establishments as compared to 420 in the previous month. The number of applicants placed, however, declined in Central Government and Private Sectors. 785 applicants were placed in Central Government establishments as against 1,334 and 366 in Private Establishments as compared to 771 in November 1972.

A marked fall in placements is observed at the following Exchanges : -

Regional Employment Exchange, Bombay, 199 as against 312 in November 1972, Sub Regional Employment Exchange, Bombay, 837 as against 1,038, District Employment Exchange, Ratnagiri 89 as against 199, Sub Regional Employment Exchange, Nagpur 139 as compared to 251 and District Employment Exchange, Chandrapur 33 against 304.

While the fall in placements at District Employment Exchange, Chandrapur is indicative of a return to norm, the fall at other Employment Exchanges is due to non receipt of results of submission and lesser employment opportunities available to the Exchange registrants during the month.

Vacancies notified have shown a fall in all Sectors except the Quasi Government establishments. 1,421 vacancies were notified by Central Government establishments as against 1,944 in November 1972, 1,759 by State Government establishments as against 1,939, 1,076 by Quasi Government employers as compared to 835 and 1,810 by Private employers as against 2,633.

Cases Under Labour Laws

BEFORE SHRI S. R. DOIPHODE, ADDITIONAL AUTHORITY UNDER THE PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT, BOMBAY

APPLICATION No. 1608 OF 1971

Shri Ramdhar M. Singh and Others, through silk Workers Union, Mahashaya
House, 5th Road Santacruz, East, Bombay-55.

Versus

The Rajkamal Silk Mills, 76, A. B. Government Industrial Estate, Kandivali
East, Bombay-67.

Payment of Wages Act, 1936 Section 15 :—Applicants of the Rajkamal Silk Mills, Bombay were weavers working on price rates claiming deducted wages for the month of May 1971 to July 1971. The Mills Resisted the claim denying its liability stating that the Wage Board for the Silk Textile Industry Maharashtra State in Reference No. 2 of 1964 gave an order on 30th September 1968 standardizing the weavers wages. The mills further admitted that subsequent upon the standardization of the wages, some of the weavers have been affected and their wages have been reduced. It was bound to happen.
The Court therefore held that there was no illegal deduction as alleged and dismissed the application.

About 13 workers jointly filed this application claiming deducted wages as shown in the Schedule from the Opposite party.

The case of the applicants is that they are all weavers working in the Rajkamal Silk Mill, and that for the month of May 1971 to July 1971, their wages have not been paid in full as before. Since 2nd May 1971, the Opposite party started illegal deductions as shown in the Schedule. All the applicants are weavers working on piece rates and the opposite party reduced the piece rates without showing any reasons. Hence they have claimed the difference as the illegal deductions.

The opposite party by its written statement has resisted the claim by denying its liability. It is denied that the applicants' wages for May to July 1971 for any other wage period have been unlawfully deducted. That the Wage Board for the Silk Textile Industry in Maharashtra State in Reference No. 2 of 1964, gave an order on 30th September, 1968 (published in M.G.G. Part I-L dated 31st October 1968 at page 4427) standardizing the weavers' wages. The Standardization Scheme of weavers' wages was to be implemented with retrospective effect from 1st January 1967. The Silk Mills' Association Ltd. & Co.

order of the Wage Board with retrospective effect. The Mazdoor Sabha, the Representative party to the said order, has been applying for its implementation in Bombay praying the Wage Board by the Opposite party to implement the order. The applicants calculated the piece rates as per the Standardization Scheme and gave a notice on the Notice Board and shown at Exh. 1. The Mazdoor Sabha on 29th June 1971, and the Opposite party has refused to implement the order from May 1971, and has refused to pay wages from the weavers requested to deposit the wages with the Opposite Party. The applicants have requested the fourth Labour Court to order a reduction in the piece rates in the piece rate effective order of the fourth Labour Court. The stretch of imaginary wages are fixed as per the order of the fourth Labour Court. The applicants have claimed illegal deductions.

4. Upon these facts, whether the

of the Wage Board became final and it was to be implemented with retrospective effect from 1st January 1967. In the meanwhile the Mill Mazdoor, the Representative Union for the Silk Textile Industry which was the party to the said dispute of standardization of weavers wages filed an application being application No. 744 of 1970, before the Fourth Labour Court at Bangalore praying that the non implementation of the said order of the Wage Board by the Opposite party may be directed to withdraw the illegal change by implementing the order of the Wage Board. Thereafter, the opposite party submitted the piece rates for different qualities of cloth manufactured by them in accordance with the Standardization Scheme prescribed by the Wage Board and put up a notice on the Notice Board on 11th June 1971, and a copy of which is annexed to the application at Exhibit 4. The copy of the said notice was sent to the Mill Mazdoor Sabha on 11th June 1971, and a copy of which is shown at Exhibit B. On 29th June 1971, the Mill Mazdoor Sabha was informed that the Opposite party had implemented the Wage Board's Scheme with effect from 1st January 1971, and have also calculated the difference to be paid to or recovered from the weavers for the years 1967 to 1971. The Mill Mazdoor Sabha was requested to depute a representative to verify the calculations made by the Opposite Party. The said Mill Mazdoor Sabha, after being satisfied with the calculations, withdrew the application for illegal change filed by it before the Labour Court. From the above narration, it is submitted that the increase in the piece-rates for the weavers is due to the implementation of the order of the Wage Board hereinabove referred to and can by no means of imagination be said to be unlawful as alleged by the applicants. The rates are fixed as per the order of the Wage Board and as such there is no illegal deductions.

Upon these pleadings the following point arises for consideration :—
Whether the applicants prove that there is illegal deductions in wages ?

Two of the applicants have been examined. The opposite party has examined their Manager. The opposite party also filed certified copy of the application filed by the Mill Mazdoor Sabha under section 46 (5) of the B. I. R. 1946, in the matter of breach of an order of the Wage Board and in the matter of an illegal change, dated 14th October 1970, and the order passed by the Labour Court, dated 22nd August 1971, withdrawing the said application.

My finding on the above point is in the negative.

Here are my reasons.

Before scrutinising the evidence of the applicants, I will shortly deal with the admitted facts in this case, which stand out clearly from evidence and the of Maharashtra, referred to the Wage Board a dispute regarding the revision of wages between Mill Mazdoor Sabha and Silk Textile Undertaking in Greater Bombay. Similarly, disputes with some undertakings were directly referred to the Wage Board under section 86 CC of the Bombay Industrial Relations Act. The references before the Wage Board were numbered as 2 of 1964 ; 3 of 1964 ; 4 of 1964 ; 5 of 1964 ; 1 of 1966 and 2 of 1967. Pending the references before the Wage Board, the parties entered into an agreement dated 24th April 1968, covering various types of allowances on different sorts in the Weaving department and also incorporating a skeleton scheme on which the wage of 2, 3 and 4 looms weavers may be standardized. Under the same agreement, the parties left the following issues to the Board for decisions :—

- (a) What should be the base earning for loom per day for the skeleton scheme for 2 loom weavers for each of the Groups B & C and at what level of efficiency ?
- (b) What should be the base earnings per loom per day for 3 and 4 looms weavers for the skeleton scheme and at what level of efficiency, having regard to the scheme as a whole ?
- (c) Whether this agreed scheme would be given any retrospective effect and if so from which date etc.

As desired by the parties the Board made an interim order on 15th May 1968 in terms of the said agreement. The Wage Board gave its decision on 30th September 1968, as follows :—

1 (a) The base earnings of a weaver working on two looms in B Group mills shall be Rs. 1.60 (excluding allowances) per loom per day, at 75 per cent efficiency.

The base earnings, for a two loom weaver in 'C' Group Mill shall be Rs. 1.44 (excluding allowances) per loom per day at 75 per cent efficiency.

(b) The base earnings for a weaver working on 3 looms system shall be Rs. 1.54 P. (excluding allowances) per loom per day at 75 per cent efficiency and that for a four loom weaver, the base earnings shall be Rs. 1.35 (excluding allowances) per loom, per day at 75 per cent efficiency. This is the majority decision.

9. Thereafter, the Silk and Art Silk Mills Association went in appeal against the decision of the Wage Board but without success. Thereafter, a review application in the Industrial Court against the Appellate Order was filed which was dismissed by the Industrial Court, and hence this order of the Wage Board became final, meaning thereby that these rates of wages became final and operative with retrospective effect i.e. from 1st January 1967, as stated above. Thereafter, the Mill Mazdoor Sabha and Silk Textile Undertaking filed a writ application in the High Court against the decision of the Wage Board. No. 744 the applicant Sabha was allowed to withdraw the application. Now meantime the opposite party has given effect to the order of the Wage by implementing the rates of wages to the 3 and 4 looms weavers from Ma for which a notice Exhibit 2 was affixed showing that how the reduction effected and how the reduction will be made in certain category of w This application is now being filed by some workers with the help of a Union. Now, in the back-ground of all these facts, I will have to s evidence of the applicants.

10. From what has been stated above, it will be clear that there is a sentative Union which was a party to the Standardization Scheme in t industry, according to which, the piece rates in 2, 3 and 4 looms weavers standardized with effect from 30th September 1968. In the written sta also the Opposite party has given a brief narration of all these facts, v have stated above. I will, therefore, now turn to the evidence of the app and point out where they have admitted these main facts. The appl Ambica Ramdhir and Ramdharsingh, have been examined on behalf workers. Now the applicant, Ramdhar Singh, says that he was a V working in the Opposite Party Mill since 1963. He says that there are 48 looms in opposite party Mill. He says that each weaver work o looms. Before May 1971, they had piece rates fixed, according to qua cloth woven and they used to get wages as per that piece rate. After May the opposite party deducted one piece on each quality of cloth. The paid 16 paise per meter and thereafter, opposite party used to pay Rs. 11 per meter and hence there was deduction in payment of each quality. I noted in the schedule the rates and deductions. He says that Union ha a letter. He says that there was no change in R. M. P. in the loom, nor t change in quality of cloth. One beam of a particular quality fees a loom month or 1½ months. Now, in cross-examination, he gives certain va admissions. First, he says that Mill Mazdoor Sabha is the only reco Union in Silk Industry. He says that he knows that the demand for pay and D. A. can be raised by this Union only. He says that he was member of that Union. He says that the other workers were member o Union. He however admits that there was dispute regarding standardi scheme of wages before Wage Board. Here is admission on behalf o applicants' about standardization of wages. Then he says that he do know if Wage Board has fixed any scheme nor he is able to read as he terate. He does not know if Mill Mazdoor Sabha has filed a case for change. He however admits that the notice Exhibit 1 was affixed to the Board. He does not know if there was any award from Labour Court says that the piece rate is calculated on the basis of read and time. H that this is the system (real and piece) even before the Wage Board's Sc He does not know the method to calculate wages. He does not know h wages of other quality of clothes are calculated. He also does not kno wages fixed under the Wage Board. He says that during the dispute h not woven with. He does not know what is revolution per minute eventhough he does not know the amount of recommendation of Wage Board. He is not able to say how he has shown each month's deduction as mentioned in his application. Now he admits in his cross-examination that Mill Mazdoor Sabha is the representative Trade Union in the Silk industry, and secondly, that there was a dispute before the Wage Board for the standardization of wages. The decision of the Wage Board was given, but he being illiterate he could not know personally, what it was.

11. Now the next witness examined by the applicants, is Ambika Ramdhir, who says that he was getting Rs. 180 to Rs. 200 per month. He has operated Brasso Double Beam after May 1971. Before May 1971., the rate of brasso double beam was 12 paise. After May 1971, the rate was reduced to 10 paise. There was no change in weed, speed, looms before and after. He has woven Nylon, Georget, for which he was paid at the rate of 12 paise before May 1971, and after May 1971, it was reduced to 10.15 paise. The quality, speed, looms etc. remained the same before and after. Now due to reduction in the rate of wages, his total wages, have been reduced to Rs. 20 to Rs. 30 per month. Now in cross-examination, he says that he was never member of Mill Mazdoor Sabha. He says that he knows the name of that Union, but he does not know, if it represents the silk workers. He knows that D. A. has been raised recently but he does not know at whose instance that demand was put up. He knows that standard wages were fixed by the Wage Board. He says that according to the award., some rates are increased on certain goods but in other, it is reduced. Thereafter, he gives the details of the work. He was also working on four looms. He does not know, if by giving lesser lines, the rate is increased or lowered. He has produced, Exhibit 3, his identification card.

12. Now from this evidence also, two things are clearly seen admitted, one is that he has heard the name of Mill Mazdoor Sabha representing Silk industry and (2) that there was Wage Board orders standardizing the wages. He, however, admits that by standardization of wages, wages of certain workers were reduced, while wages of others were increased. Both the workers admit that they were working on four looms and there were 48 looms in this Mill.

13. Now as against the evidence of the applicants, the opposite party has examined its Manager. He says that he knows the order of the Wage Board in respect of the wages which they have implemented from May 1971, in the factory. He says that the order is in force from 1968. But the applicants wanted that the effect should not be given to the orders from 1968, and they wanted to pay their wages at the existing rates. In 1971 only the workers demanded to apply that award and hence the opposite party started to apply it. In that order Mill Mazdoor Sabha was representing the workers, and that Union made an application to the Labour Court for its extension and a copy has been produced by him (witness). The Labour Court also has given consent for withdrawal a copy of which is also produced. They had sent letters to duced rates. Now he admits in the cross-examination that due to the application of new rates, the wages of the workers, have been reduced than before. He admits that before May 1971., every worker used to get Rs. 160 Rs. 200 per month. He also admits in cross-examination that 3 or 4 looms are being operated before 1971. Now also 3 or 4 looms are being operated on them. He does not know what is the meaning of standardization of wages. He has calculated annexure to the written statement. He says that he calculated this statement without taking into consideration the efficiency of each worker. He has no idea, if Rs. 95 scale is covered by the Award or not.

4. As I have pointed out above, from this evidence, it is clear that mostly 3 or 4 looms are operated by these weavers, that their wages were more than Rs. 95 before May 1971, i.e. before the standardization of wages as per the award of Wage Board. The award for standardization of wages, made by the Wage Board, has become final and operative from 1st January 1967, and that Mill Mazdoor Sabha was the representative Union, which got this standardization award, and also filed an application in the matter of an illegal strike for not implementing the standardization of wages as per the award. In this connection, I may state that the opposite party, as I have pointed out above, has examined its Manager, who has stated that the award is in force from 1968, but the applicants did not want to have its implementation and they wanted to be governed by the wages of the pre award period. In 1971, by the workers demanded to apply that award, and hence the award was implemented from May 1971. There is no cross-examination on this point. The admission of the workers is seen from the application filed before the 4th Labour Court under section 46(5) of the Bombay Industrial Relations Act. Now having regard to the evidence of the opposite party, I find that the applicants wanted to be governed by the pre-existing wages existed before standardization scheme and hence they were paid upto May 1971, as per the previous rates and when they filed application before the Labour Court, the opposite party started implementing the standardization scheme as per the award at Wage Board. Thereafter, the opposite party was forced to effect the changes as per the standardization award. The opposite party also has given details of technicalities, how they have fixed the rates of wages, for each type of clothes woven by the weavers. In the award, at paragraph 55(1) (d) base earning for a weaver working on 3 looms is given as Rs. 1.54 (excluding allowances) per loom per day at 75 percent efficiency and that for a four loom weaver, the base earnings shall be Rs. 1.35 (excluding allowances) per loom per day at 75 percent efficiency. Now this rate has been maintained by the opposite party as per the award wherein certain workable formula has been evolved for calculating the piece rate for any sort, according to the looms, type of clothes, efficiency etc. There cannot be any dispute about the correctness of the calculation, as it is based on the formula provided in the said agreement.

5. The main contention of the learned representative of the applicant is paragraph 55 of the said Award, a direction for the base earnings for 3 looms and four looms weavers, have been given. He has relied on a ruling reported in 1955, I LLJ, page 555, in the case of Daru (C.T.) (Ahmedabad Mill Mazdoor Mandal) and Ahmedabad Spinning and Manufacturing Company Ltd., and another. In this case, it has been observed that "Standardization involves not only raising of wages but also the lowering of wages so that all wages should be co-ordinated and should be paid on the same basis and under a scheme of standardization no variation in the rates of wages is allowed and all units must pay a uniform wage. In view of this ruling, there is bound to be a reduction in the wages of some persons who might be getting higher wages prior to the application of this scheme. Now, it is an admitted fact of the applicants as I have pointed out above, that the wages have been standardized under the Award, which has become final and which is binding and as such the Opposite party in view of this ruling cannot pay more or less. The opposite party was not paying according to the award, and hence there was a case of illegal change made out by the Mill Mazdoor Sabha, by an application under section 46(3) of the Bombay Industrial Relations Act, 1946, before the 4th Labour Court which was subsequently withdrawn. Moreover, it will be placing in an anomalous situation the employer on one hand to face consequence of notice of illegal change on failure to implement the standardization of Award, and to direct him to pay wages as per the claim of the applicants on the ground that the workers were not governed by the said award. I have pointed out above that in this Mill there are 48 looms. This reference, therefore, will apply to all the units having more than 25 looms and the base earnings for 2, 3 and 4 looms have been fixed. In this Award the Mills falling in 'C' group are to be upgraded to 'B' group, and as such there would be no Mills remaining in 'C' group, and that is why the Wage Board has rightly observed in the body of their award that the crucial question to be decided was fixing the base wages for the Mills falling in 'B' group. Therefore, the ruling cited by the learned representative of the opposite party will be applicable to this case. Thus when there is standardization of wages, it cannot be by any stretch of imagination said that due to implementation of the scheme there is illegal deduction. In this case the opposite party has admitted that consequent upon the standardization of the wages, some of the weavers have been affected and their wages have been reduced, which as per the observation in this case, is justifiable, in such cases of standardization, it is bound to happen. Under the Payment of Wages Act, therefore, this cannot be called an illegal deduction. This is an order of the Court, and in view of the order of the court, the wages have been fixed and this Court, therefore, cannot hold that the wages are reduced illegally. I, therefore, find that there is no illegal deduction as alleged by the applicants. The case, therefore, is bound to fail.

16. In the result, I dismiss the application, for the reasons stated above.

(Signed) S. R. DOIPHODE,

Additional Authority under the Payment of Wages Act, Bombay.

Dated 26th October 1972.

The Current Notes

Yeast Manufacturing Industry declared as public utility service

The Government of Maharashtra has declared the industry engaged in fresh yeast manufacturing wherein 20 or more workmen are employed to be public utility service for the purpose of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, for a period of six months.

Minimum Wages Act Exemptions

The Government of Maharashtra has directed that for a period of nine months from April 1, 1973 the provisions of the Minimum Wages Act, 1948, shall apply to the part-time employee in certain specified scheduled employments. Employees whose daily hours of work do not exceed five hours and such hours of work are not split into more than two periods of work shall be treated as part-time employees.

The specified employments are : employment in any rice mill, flour or dal mill; tobacco (including bidi making); oil mill; stone-breaking or stone crushing; public motor transport tanneries and leather manufactory; residential hotel, restaurant or eating house; cotton ginning or cotton pressing manufactory; glass industry; potteries; rubber manufacturing industry; paper and paper-board manufactory, brick or roof tiles manufactory, premises wherein buffaloes are kept for milking, cleaning or feeding and or any other ancillary process; automobile repairing workshops and garages, canteens and clubs not falling under entry 13 in part I of the schedule of the Act; film production industry; powerloom industry, any local authority, construction or maintaining of roads or building operations, any industry in which any process of printing by letter press, lithography, photogravure or other similar work or work incidental to such process or book binding is carried, on any shop or commercial establishment (not being an employment in any bank or an employment which is included under any of the other entries in the schedule to the Act), and any industry in which any process of transforming plastics into various solid shapes through moulding, forming, extrusion or casting by application singly or together with heat and or pressure or both or other similar work or work incidental to such process is carried on.

Pay scarcity workers at old rates if higher than uniform rates

The State Government has directed that the scarcity workers should be paid their wages at old rates if it is found that the uniform rates which were brought into force from December 1, 1972, are lower than the old rates.

It was represented to the Government that in some districts the old rates in respect of some of the items of the scarcity relief works were higher than the prescribed uniform rates and as a result the workers were likely to get paid less than Rs. 2.50 for men and Rs. 2 for women. In view of this, the Government has asked the Collectors to examine the problem and submit reports so that the uniform rates could be suitably revised.

Pending Government's decision on the modifications of the uniform rates necessary orders have been issued to the concerned authorities to pay wages to the scarcity workers according to the higher of the two rates.

Ad Hoc pension to municipal primary Teachers

The Government of Maharashtra has sanctioned a scheme granting an ad hoc pension to those primary school teachers in the employment of municipal school boards in Western Maharashtra (including Poona, Sholapur and Solapur municipal corporations) Nagpur municipal corporation and municipal councils in Vidarbha who retired on superannuation between August 15, 1947 and April 30, 1960.

The scheme which has already come into force with effect from January 1, 1973 will be applicable to those teachers who are still alive. Under the scheme, the rates of ad hoc pension will be Rs. 40 per month payable only during the lifetime of the pensioner. No other additional pensionary benefits such as gratuity-cum-retirement gratuity, temporary increase in pension, family pension or service gratuity, etc., will be admissible.

The primary school teachers who are in receipt of pension admissible under the Bombay Primary Education Rules 1948 or pension from any other source will not be eligible for this pension.

The teachers who have retired between August 15, 1947 and April 30 1960, could not be asked to refund the employers' share of the contributory provident fund received by them along with their own contribution.

The Commissioner, Nagpur municipal corporation the Administrative Officer of the Municipal school board and Chief Officer of the municipal council will be the competent authority to sanction the ad hoc pension under this scheme. Teachers entitled for ad hoc pension may apply in the prescribed forms. Copies of application forms can be had from the offices of the aforesaid officers.

Birmingham Trade Mission calls on Industries Minister.

The Trade Mission of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce and Industry, headed by Mr. N. J. Burne, called on Shri N. M. Tidke, Minister for Industries, Sachivalaya, Bombay on 17th April, 1973.

Shri Tidke briefed the members on the industrial progress made by Maharashtra and discussed the possibilities of importing machinery and other items that were needed by the State.

The Mission offered to supply high-pressure cylinders, porcelain insulators and specialised type of printing machinery, etc. to Maharashtra.

Shri K. P. Patil, Minister of State for Industry; Mr. M. J. Marshall, Deputy High Commissioner in Bombay; Mr. G. Peaston, Commercial Secretary and Dr. M. N. Desai, Secretary, Industries Department, were also present on the occasion.

Streamlining of Arbitration Called Key to Expanded Use

Arbitration has been widely and successfully used in this century to settle grievances arising during the term of a labor contract, but it is badly in need of streamlining.

Norman Walker, information director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, cites the cost factor, the time required to settle grievances, and the availability of qualified arbitrators as the chief problems.

Writing in the AFL-CIO magazine, the Federationist, Walker notes that arbitration, as it has evolved since the 1940s, means voluntary arbitration, as contrasted to compulsory arbitration. The affected parties voluntarily enter the arbitration procedure of their own free will.

Walker points out that wider reliance on the arbitration process has contributed to new stresses on the system. One strain is from sheer volume. The Federal Mediation & Conciliation Service and the American Arbitration Association—the two principal agencies supplying arbitration services at the national level—received an estimated 20,000 requests for arbitration panels during 1972.

Chief Justice Stanley H. Fuld rejected both contentions. The strikers had met the requirements for public assistance, he ruled. And if there is any violation of neutrality, he suggested, it is certainly no more so than if the state “renders of grievances, Walker notes, are factors such as technological development, increasing unionization among public employes and the emergence of a younger, more militant workforce.

The author cites a recent Labour Dept. study showing that one-third of all work stoppages in the country occur during the life of the contract, indicating that working conditions—not just disagreement over new terms of wages and fringe benefits—can produce crisis situations.

“A more effective arbitration process could obviously contribute to reducing at least that one-third of the nation's strikes,” Walker observes.

Remedial efforts are already under way, he says. Steps are being taken to reduce the caseload in the beginning by screening out weak or frivolous grievances, consolidating similar grievances for hearing in a single case, and encouraging arbitrators to issue bench decisions where the parties agree no

Even so, much more work needs to be done to solve the basic problems of time lag, cost, and arbitrator availability that currently hinder the process, he says.

FM & CS statistics show that the arbitration process now takes an average 168 days from the time a request for arbitration is filed until an award is handed down.

Excluding attorney fees and other expenses incurred separately by the parties in a case, arbitration costs that averaged less than 8200 a day in 1962 had about tripled by 1972, says Walker.

Meanwhile, he points out, the supply of acceptable arbitrators has not increased commensurately with the number of cases. In response to the problem of arbitrator availability, FM & CS has launched a training program in the Buffalo, N.Y., area to develop qualified newcomers into the arbitrator profession.

Also, the FM & CS has inaugurated a new computerized system for tracking the progress of arbitration cases to help locate and eliminate the "bugs" in the system, Walker reports.

"The FM & CS computer will produce a great deal of important incidental information," the author suggests. "Individual companies, industries or areas in which the incidence of grievances is highest will be natural situations for a mediator's investigation on whether grievance systems are bogged down or overloaded. They 'will red-flag' potential problem situations."

Some unions, too, are experimenting with "instant" arbitration with a good deal of success, notably the Steelworkers and the Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers which have cut both costs and time to settle recent cases significantly, Walker observes.

He finds the fact that experimentation is being pursued "demonstrates the basic confidence in which the parties hold the entire (arbitration) system.

"That basic confidence is also displayed by the wide recognition that the proper purpose of arbitration should be justice speedily achieved," he sums up. "It is a real tribute to labor and management that, like it or not, they do abide by arbitrators' decisions."

First Asian Conference of Oil-Chemical Unions

An Asian area conference of oil and chemical unions, the first of its kind, was conducted by the International Federation of Petroleum and Chemical Workers in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The Malaysian National Union of Petroleum and Chemical Industry Workers was host, and AAFLI assisted in making the meeting possible.

Sixty-nine delegates and observers from 17 countries attended the weekly sessions. Discussion topics included the status of the petroleum and chemical industries in Asia ; trade unions in developing nations ; multinational corporations, and the International Labour Organization. The chief emphasis was on unity within the federation and how to make it more effective.

Participating countries were Australia, Fili, India, Indonesia, Japan-Oikna, Korea, Malaysia (Sabah, Sarawa), Singapore, Vietnam, Taiwan, Australia, Italy, Lebanon, Liberia, Turkey, U.S.A. and Venezuela."

John T. Dunlop, Chairman of the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee, has been designated as the director of the Cost of Living Council under Phase 3 of the Administration's economic stabilization program.

Defining poor families

"The level of family income which the Federal Government in USA uses to help determine whether a person is poor or not has been raised by the Labour Department in its manpower programs.

The Department's Manpower Administration uses the guidelines to help determine eligibility in manpower training and job placement programs.

The new levels are approximately $193 higher than last year's. They will be effective immediately.

The change was made by the Manpower Administration to conform with a recent revision in the poverty income guidelines by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

For purposes of program eligibility, a person is considered to be poor if he or his family receives welfare payments or if annual net income does not exceed the following limits :—

Family Size	Continental U.S.		Hawaii		Alaska
	Nonfarm	Farm	Nonfarm	Farm	Nonfarm	Farm
1	$2,100	$1,800	$2,425	$2,075	$2,625	2,200
2	2,725	2,325	3,150	2,700	3,425	2,900
3	3,450	2,950	4,000	3,400	4,325	3,700
4	4,200	3,575	4,850	4,125	5,250	4,400
5	4,925	4,200	5,675	4,850	6,175	5,200
6	5,550	4,725	6,400	5,475	6,950	5,900
7	6,200	5,275	7,150	6,100	7,750	6,600

come limits for families of more than seven persons can be determined by looking for the nonfarm and farm levels these amounts for each additional person: $650 and $550 for the Continental U.S., $750 and $650 for Hawaii, $800 and $700 for Alaska.

Income guidelines are based on poverty thresholds derived from a definition of poverty developed for statistical purposes by the Social Security Administration in 1964.

Income guidelines are used in all Federal programs in which poverty is a qualifying eligibility factor."

Job, Benefit Improvements Still Best Way to Enrich Jobs

The following is excerpted from an address by Machinists Vice President William W. Winpisinger at the recent annual meeting of the Industrial Relations Research Association in Toronto.

After some years of seeking legislative alternatives to collective bargaining, even more years of academic discussion and debate on the pros and cons of individual responsibilities in relation to public rights, it now appears that labour's friends in government, intellectual and academic circles have discovered an interesting new malady. They've already provided it with a name, a diagnosis and even a cure.

The name is the "bluecollar blues." The diagnosis is that because younger workers are brighter and better educated than their fathers they refuse to accept working conditions that past generations took for granted. The cure consists not of psychic penicillin known as job enrichment.

If you want to enrich the job, enrich the pay check. The better the wage, the greater the job satisfaction. There is no better cure for the "blue collar blues."

If you want to enrich the job, begin to decrease the number of hours a worker has to labor in order to earn a decent standard of living. Just as the increased productivity of mechanized assembly lines made it possible to decrease the work week from 60 to 40 hours a couple of generations ago, the time has come to translate the increased productivity of automated processes into a kind of enrichment that comes from shorter work weeks, longer vacations and earlier retirements.

If you want to enrich the job, do something about the nerve-shattering heat and the fumes that are deafening, poisoning and destroying the health of American workers. Thousands of chemicals are being used in workplaces whose effect on humans has never been tested.

Companies are willing to spend millions advertising quieter refrigerators or smoother machines but are reluctant to spend one penny to provide a reasonably safe level of noise in their plants. And though we are now supposed to have a law that protects working people against some of the more obvious occupational hazards, industry is already fighting to undermine enforcement, and the Nixon Administration has gone along with them by cutting the funds that are needed to make it effective.

If you want to enrich the jobs of the men and women who manufacture the goods that are needed for the functioning of our industrialized society, the time has come to re-evaluate the snobbery that makes it noble to possess a college degree and shameful to learn skills that involve a little bit of grease under the finger nails.

The best way to undermine a worker's morale, and decrease his satisfaction with himself and his job is to make him feel that society looks down on him because he wears blue coveralls instead of a white collar.

If you want to enrich the job, give working people a greater sense of control over their working conditions. That's what they, and their unions, were seeking in the early 1960s when management was automating and retooling on a large scale. That's why we asked for advance consultation when employers intended to make major job changes. That's why we negotiated for clauses providing retraining and transfer rights and a fair share of the increased productivity that resulted from automation.

What workers resent, and what really causes alienation, are management decisions that rearrange job assignments or upset existing work schedules without reference to the rights of the work force.

If you want to enrich the job, you must realize that no matter how dull or boring or dirty it may be an individual worker must feel that he has not reached the end of the line. If a worker is to be reasonably satisfied with the job he has today he must have hope for something better tomorrow.

Perhaps workers were not thinking in terms of job enrichment when they first negotiated the right to bid on better shifts, overtime or promotions on the basis of length of service. Perhaps they were only trying to restrict management's right to allocate jobs and shifts and overtime on the basis of favoritism. But even if they weren't thinking in terms of "job enrichment," in actual practice that's what they got.

It's true that many young workers in their 20s resent the fact that while they have to tighten the same old bolt in the same old spot a thousand times a day the guys in their 40s are walking up and down the line with inspection sheets or running around the factory on forklifts.

They may resent and bitch about it now, but they also know that they are accumulating seniority which they can trade for a better job of their own some are those who worry about what the younger generation is coming to wonder whether the rebellious young workers of today will be willing to wear their father's shoes in the factory jobs of tomorrow.

There is little doubt, and all the studies tend to prove, that worker dissatisfaction diminishes with age. And that's because older workers have accrued all the kinds of job enrichment that unions have fought for—better wages, shorter hours, vested pensions, a right to have a say in their working conditions, the right to be promoted on the basis of seniority and all the rest.

That's the kind of job enrichment that unions believe in. And I assure you that's the kind of job enrichment that we will continue to fight for."

Workers Press for Progress Through Democratic System

American workers approach the New Year in a determined mood. They are all aware of the many, grave problems they face as wage earners, as heads of families, as citizens—for their problems are those of all America.

Working people are convinced none of these problems is insurmountable. They are determined to resolve each of them through the American system.

Workers are not blind to the imperfections and injustices of the system, but they are deaf to the cries of those who would wreck the best system of government yet devised by man in the vain hope that something better might come out of it.

Workers want to eliminate the imperfections in the system. Their goal, of course, is to have the government function for the benefit of all its citizens, not just a privileged few. That goal, workers believe, can be achieved by substituting justice for injustice, equity for inequity, compassion for neglect, common sense for unfairness, and reason for irrationality.

Workers know that the single best mechanism they have for building a better life for themselves and their families is through united, collective action—at the bargaining table through strong unions and in the legislative arena through a strong, united voice.

For the nearly 5 million workers who will go to the bargaining table through their unions, 1973 will be a year to regain lost purchasing power, to better their lives today and in the future. It is only through collective bargaining that workers have a say in their own economic destiny and an opportunity to receive a fair portion of the wealth they produce.

In 1973, the AFL-CIO will be pursuing many legislative goals in the

A just tax system based on ability to pay through closing tax loopholes which benefit only the most wealthy.

A national health security program based on human needs, rather than individual pocket-books.

A Foreign Trade and Investment Act that will stop the export of U.S. jobs, capital and technology.

Making the economic stabilization program equitable for all or abolishing controls altogether.

Increasing the minimum wage above the poverty level and extending coverage to all workers.

Mandatory federal minimum standards for unemployment and workmen's compensation laws.

In addition, the AFL-CIO will seek; establishment of an independent Consumer Protection Agency a federally funded, community-controlled system of comprehensive day care centers; welfare reform; protections for workers' pensions; collective bargaining rights for state and local government employees; repeal of the Hatch Act and enactment of a Federal Workers' Bill of Rights; protection for workers' jobs against environmental blackmail by employers seeking to avoid compliance with pollution abatement orders; full funding of education, health, job safety and environmental protection programs; enforcement of existing civil rights laws; increased low and middle-income housing; and a national voters registration law.

All of these legislative goals have one thing in common—they will help all Americans. None will benefit workers at the expense of their fellow citizens. All are designed to strengthen the fabric of America and to improve the American system.

So American workers face 1973 in the unshaken belief that trade unionism will serve them as well in the future as it has in the past. They pay no heed to the editorialists, wrong so often in the past, who claim unions are weaker, divided, unprepared for the battles that lie ahead.

These purveyors of gloom couldn't be more wrong—and the events of 1973 will prove that prediction."

In an address before the American Arbitration Association, Meany said there has been "some misinterpretation on the part of people who, I suppose, had some reason to misinterpret?" labor's reasons for taking part in the study group, which serves as an advisory committee to the AAA.

"It was interpreted that the AFL-CIO had decided to forego strikes—to give up the strike weapon, to accept compulsion," Meany recalled.

"Voluntary arbitration is the very essence of freedom. Compulsory arbitration is the reverse. It is coercion. To labor, the question is just that simple—freedom versus coercion. And we will never accept coercion."

Meany said the AFL-CIO has long regarded voluntary arbitration as an integral part of the collective bargaining process. And when it agreed to sit on the joint labor-management committee, its purpose was "to perfect the collective bargaining process through expanded use of arbitration, mediation and fact-finding."

"No one has coerced us into doing this," he said. "The government is not standing over our heads with an injunction or an edict of some type. We are participating in this project because we believe that it will be of benefit to our membership."

"We need some new machinery to reduce the likelihood of strikes," Meany said, "and the place to look is in the collective bargaining process itself. That is the reason why we are engaged in this 'do-it-yourself' project with the AAA."

Meany made it clear that "the strike—as an economic weapon—will never be replaced by voluntary arbitration."

"No one likes a strike," he said, "but we recognize that it is the right to strike, the threat of a strike or, in some cases, a strike itself that makes the collective bargaining process work."

"Therefore, under no conditions will the trade union movement ever surrender its ultimate right to strike," he said.

"We reject the counsel of those who say that because collective bargaining is not perfect it must be junked. We reject the advice of those who say strikes are intolerable in this complex society and that compulsory arbitration would solve the problems that the parties have failed to solve for themselves."

Meany said those who seek compulsory arbitration laws contend they are operating in the interest of the public. Labor, he said, rejects

"If we were to do less, we would abandon our conviction that the right of free men and women to work collectively through their unions to determine their own economic destiny is a cornerstone of a free society," he said.

"No one can convince us that the public's right not to be inconvenienced outweighs the public interest in the preservation of freedom."

Meany said he thought pres. Eisenhower summed up the situation well. He said: "There are worse things than strikes—and one of them is the loss of freedom."

"The fact is that those who claim to put public convenience ahead of individual freedom, those who use public convenience as an excuse for compulsory arbitration have as their hidden, but very real, goal the abolition of strike effective strikes," Meany declared.

He said the labor movement is well aware the public interest must be provided for in some strike situations. And he pointed out that, in many instances, unions have offered to insure that essential goods and services are delivered during a strike.

"All too often," he said, "management has rejected those offers, knowing that the union would be blamed and public support for the company would be enhanced if essential goods were not delivered."

Meany also observed that few in the general public are aware of the reasons to which labor and management have succeeded in narrowing the range of issues on which strikes occur.

Most contracts, he noted, have built-in limitations that provide for procedures to resolve disputes during the life of a contract, and many provide for extension of the agreements after the expiration date—so long as negotiations continue—with full retroactivity once a new contract is settled.

He was also optimistic over the use of expedited grievance procedures. He said "the jury is still out on the performance of this new procedure."

Meany said it was "significant" that the Steelworkers, headed by L. M. Howe, a member of the AAA labor-management advisory group, established an expedited grievance procedure in their last contract talks with the major steel producers. Under the procedure, hearings are held within

SHARING THE BENEFITS OF PRODUCTIVITY

BY

MARKLEY ROBERTS*

What Productivity is

If you worked 2,000 hours last year at $3.50 an hour and produced 10,000 widgets, your output per hour was five widgets—total output divided by hours worked.

If you are averaging six widgets an hour this year, your output per hour—productivity—has gone up 20 per cent.

Let's assume a widget sells for $2, the same as last year, and you are paid $3.50 an hour. Your employer's labour cost per widget has gone up from 70 cents to 58 cents. He is getting added profits on each widget. As his sales volume increases, his total profits shoot up.

So he can afford to share his extra profits with his workers. Also he can share his added profit per widget with his customers through lower prices on his widgets. And his total profits can increase—a narrow profit margin on each widget, combined with a rise in sales.

Increased labour productivity is one of many justifications for a rise in living costs, wages and working conditions for similar jobs in other companies, bigger business profits and many other reasons are factors in collective bargaining.

Like the weather, productivity is the subject of a lot of talk. But there is a big difference. Most people know more about the weather than they know about productivity.

What is productivity? What causes rising productivity? How is productivity measured? What is the American record on productivity? How does productivity affect jobs, wages, prices and living standards?

With a sound understanding of productivity, this nation can develop policies leading to full employment and a fairer sharing of the nation's wealth. But rising productivity, without expanding sales and output, can increased unemployment.

Productivity is a measure of efficiency. The efficiency of a car can be judged in terms of miles per gallon of gas. To get this miles-per-gallon efficiency divide the number of miles driven by the number of gallons of gas used. If the car is driven 150 miles and uses 10 gallons of gas, the result is 15 miles per gallon.

The efficiency of a baseball player can be judged by his batting average—the number of hits divided by the total number of times, at bat. If he comes to bat 10 times and gets three hits his batting average, his efficiency, is : 300.

In a similar way labour efficiency—or labour productivity—can be established by counting up the production of goods and services and dividing up the number of hours worked by the men and women who produced this output. If a worker puts in 40 hours a week and makes 200 widgets, his productivity is five widgets per hour.

Output per man-hour is a good definition of productivity. It tells us how much a worker produces in one hour. It's possible to define productivity in other way—for example, in terms of output per dollar of invested capital or output per kilowatt of energy used in producing the output.

But human welfare is the purpose of economic life and human labour is the most important economic resource. So output per man-hour is the most useful and the simplest definition of productivity. That is what most people mean when they speak of productivity.

With this measure—how much a worker produces in an hour—comparison can be made of productivity over a period of time. Is output per man-hour this year higher or lower than last year? By what percentage?

The U. S. Labour Department's Bureau of Labour Statistics reports quarterly and yearly on output per man-hour for the total private U. S. economy, for the private non-farm economy, for manufacturing, and for "non-financial corporation. (excluding banks, insurance companies, and stock brokerage firms).

BLS also reports on productivity in some 35 selected industries—but there is no official published productivity information on any individual corporation.

The biggest cause of productivity gains over the years is improvement in the quality of American labour. Educated, skilled workers are highly productive workers.

The U. S. makes a big investment in "human capital", in the education

Thus the American worker is better educated than a generation ago. From its very beginning there has been an emphasis on education in America and there have been continuing improvements. In 1900 very few adults had completed a high school education. By 1950 only 34 per cent of the adult population 25 years and older had finished high school. In 1969 this was up to 54 per cent. And more than half now get some schooling beyond high school.

Better education and the spread of knowledge—through schools, training, programmes, books, magazines, newspapers, T. V. and so on—account for about 40 per cent of U. S. economic growth in recent decades according to some studies of economic growth. They provide the basis for inventions, new materials, the improved flow of work from one operation to another. And they provide the work-force with the basic skills for applying such advances in technology and knowhow.

More than one million patents issued in the U. S. since World War II testify to the scientific progress and the creative, inventive abilities of the American people. These inventions help speed technological progress with new ways of producing more and better goods and services.

Trade union pressures for better wages, hours, and working conditions result in business firms operating more efficiently. Businesses learn to cut costs by adding new machinery, improving management and workflows—instead of relying on low wages and salaries. Workers themselves directly contribute to better production and maintenance operations with on-the-job improvements and suggestions for higher efficiency.

Expanding mass markets in the continental-sized U. S. economy—with mass consumer buying power supported by union-won wage gains—are both a cause and a result of highly productive mass production, using advanced technology. The growth of mass markets, within the U. S. has made possible the use of more productive techniques. It has also made possible the efficiency of high-volume production.

Business investment in high technology equipment and plants—like automated computerized service and factory operation—helps bring productivity gains. Since the end of World War II, the capital stock in the U. S. economy—plants, machines and equipment—has gone up about 250 per cent, while the labour force rose less than 45 per cent.

Power-driven machinery and equipment used by skilled labour helps raise output per man-hour. Electric energy used in the U. S. doubled from 1960 to 1970.

Scientific research and development—more than half of it financed by the federal government—also helps raise productivity, through the development

Through federal, state, and local government the nation makes a large investment in the economy's productive capacity. Schools, colleges, universities, highways, airports, waterways, dock facilities, public power projects—all contribute to higher productivity in the general economy. And Government protection of public safety, plus antitrust enforcement of competition, strengthen the public and private institutions which make growing productivity possible.

In contrast to more tradition-bound societies, Americans are more willing to accept productivity-raising change. American workers have shared, to some degree, in the benefits of rising productivity—through improved living conditions. This has made it possible for most Americans to accept technological change and concentrate their efforts on humanizing such change and sharing its benefits.

Elimination of discrimination on the basis of race, age and sex also helps to raise productivity. Equal opportunity helps all citizens reach full productivity potential.

The basic, long-run causes of the rise of productivity include such factors as the education and skills of the population, the application of technological improvements through business investment and labour skills and the growth of mass consumer markets, with high-volume operations and increasing work buying power.

In the short run, growth in output per man-hour comes from an expanding economy using its potential efficiently. Rapid growth in the nation's output of goods and services, expanding job opportunities, and high utilization of the economy's productive capacity—manpower, as well as machinery and equipment—all contribute to growth in productivity.

Unemployment—entirely apart from humanitarian considerations—is a terribly inefficient waste of potentially productive economic resources. The economic waste of jobless workers and idle machines results in lagging productivity.

The American worker now produces four times as much in an hour of work as he did 60 years ago.

This rise in productivity has made possible the great advance in living conditions during these past 60 years, while working hours have been cut through a shorter work-week, paid holidays, and vacations, later entry into the work-force and earlier retirement.

Output per man-hour in the American economy has been rising almost continuously since 1909, the earliest year for which we have consistent reliable productivity information.

is expanding vigorously. Productivity rises slowly, or sometimes falls, in times of depression and recession. During the 1969-70 recession, for example, output per man-hour rose less than one percent a year.

In 1971 and 1972, a very sharp advance followed the recession slowdown of productivity. Output per manhour in the private U. S. economy rose 4.7 percent in 1971 considerably faster than the long-term trend of the past quarter century. And in the first half of 1972, productivity zoomed up at an annual rate of 4.7 percent.

Over the past 60 years there has been a substantial increase in the growth of productivity. In the years since World War II—as automation and computerization spread through the economy—the pace in growth of output per manhour has stepped up sharply. The pace of rising productivity since 1947 has been about 50 per cent faster than in the previous period, 1919—1947.

Average yearly productivity growth rates have been as follows :

1909 to 1919	0.7 percent.
1919 to 1947	2.2 percent.
1947 to 1971	3.2 percent.

Most productivity experts predict output per man-hour in the non-Government sector of U. S. economy will rise at an average rate of 3.2 percent a year over the next 10 years. With the continuing spread of automation and increased mechanization it may go up even faster.

The benefits of rising productivity come in increased efficiency. But if the benefits are not shared adequately by workers and consumers, as well as business, the result can be unemployment and economic recession.

Rising productivity, in itself, is not an unmixed blessing. There is no automatic assurance that the benefits of productivity will be shared adequately or fairly. So rising productivity presents us with the potential for economic progress as well as the potential for unemployment.

In the 1920, rising productivity was translated into booming business but wages and buying power and living standards of the great mass of American people lagged far behind. Sales of goods and services did not rise as fast as they could be produced. This led to a seriously lop-sided, unbalanced economy—to the 1929 crash and the Great Depression of the 1930s. Post-World War II recessions reflect the same failure to translate rising productivity into rising consumer buying power.

The lesson is clear. Balanced economic growth, with expanding sales and employment, must accompany rising productivity. Economic policies must seek a fair distribution of the potential benefits from rising productivity.

Labour costs don't necessarily go up when wages go up. Wages and labour costs are not the same thing. If wages go up, but productivity goes up faster, then labour costs will not go up.

An employer's total payroll costs may go up after a pay raise is negotiated. But if output per man-hour is going up also, the employer's labour cost per unit of production will be fairly stable or even falling.

For example, a 5 percent pay raise for workers in a "widget" factory might be expected to raise labour cost per widget by 5 percent. But if widget output per man-hour also goes up 5 percent, there's no change in labour cost per widget. And if output per man-hour goes up 10 percent, there's a 5 percent drop in labour cost per widget even though workers' wages went up.

From 1960 to 1965, compensation per man-hour (wages salaries, and fringe benefits) went up 23 percent in the total private economy. But labour costs per item produced (unit labour costs) went up only 5 percent because productivity rose 21 percent.

In the key manufacturing sector of the economy, unit labour costs actually declined in 1960-65. Although wages and fringe benefits increased in those years, factory production rose at a faster pace.

Furthermore, business takes its share of the benefits from rising productivity in profits and other non-labour payments like depreciation and interest return to capital.

In 1971 these non-labour costs per unit went up more than twice as fast as unit labour costs. And in the second quarter of 1972, fueled by booming profits, non-labour costs per unit of production continued to zoom up—while unit labour costs were actually falling as the result of big increases in productivity.

So an employer's labour costs per unit of production can be important in bargaining. They may be going down or rising much more slowly than his profits depreciation reserves, and other non-labour payments.

Improvements in wages, salaries, and fringe benefits help working people and their families get a fair share of the wealth they help produce. They also help to expand consumer markets, which account for nearly two-thirds of total national out.

When workers don't get a fair share, their buying power doesn't keep up with rising productive capacity, sales don't keep up with production: unsold goods pile up in warehouses, employers cut working hours and workers are laid off, workers lose income and jobs and the entire economy moves into a recession.

So a one-sided boom in business profits, at the expense of workers' earnings, holds back needed growth in workers' buying power and in consumer sales,

Rising productivity provides the basis for high and increasing of living. But the improvements in buying power are not achieved automatically. The actual rise of living standards is the result of increasing real incomes of workers and expanding consumer buying power, which unions help through collective bargaining.

The national economy's rising productivity is a factor in collective negotiations. But it is only one factor. In contract negotiations, unions consider many other factors.

Changes in the cost of living are an important consideration. When costs rise they cut the buying power of workers' earnings. Wage increases are needed to match the rise of living costs, merely to maintain the buying power of wages.

Workers have a right to continuing improvements in buying power and working conditions beyond keeping with up living costs. The buying power of hourly wages and fringe benefits should keep pace with the economy's output per man-hour. Such improvements in buying power are essential to provide the needed growth of consumer markets.

If workers' buying power fails to keep pace with the trend of rising productivity, consumer markets will not expand in line with the economy's capacity to produce more goods and services more efficiently. Should a situation continue over a period of time—without Government action to offset the un-balanced developments the result is insufficient sales, build-up of inventories, followed by cutbacks in production and a general economic decline.

An essential factor in negotiations is comparability of wages, fringe benefits and working conditions with those of other workers in similar occupations and industries. And the elimination of substandard wages is a major objective of negotiations.

Profits are another consideration keyed to the concept that workers share in the profitability of their employer and their industry.

Therefore, productivity is not the only factor in contract negotiations. Unions oppose any productivity "guideline" or any other rigid mathematical formula for negotiating agreements. They bargain with employers to share for workers on the basis of the realities in each situation.

Rising productivity can affect employment and hours of work. If the rate of sales continues to lag behind rising productivity, it can lead to layoffs.

On the other hand, rising productivity means more goods and services can be produced, without a similar increase in working hours or in the number of workers. In 1971, for example, output went up 3 per cent while total man-hours worked actually dropped seven tenths of one percent. This reflected an increase of 3.7 percent in output per man-hour in 1971.

It's clear, therefore, that real economic growth—the real volume of sales and production must be fast enough to produce more jobs. But how fast?

Assuming that output per man-hour is rising 2.3 percent a year, the average productivity rate in 1971-47, then the nation's real output of goods and services could also expand 3.2 percent a year—or else there will be a 3.2 percent decline in total working hours, through lay-offs and cutbacks in hours of work.

Another possibility is that the standard work-week could be cut by 3.2 percent, without a loss of takehome pay. But such a large annual decline in the standard work-week for the entire national economy, year after year, is unrealistic.

So, from a practical point of view, as productivity rises, standard working hours can be reduced a bit—through increased paid holidays and vacations—by some reduction in the standard work-week, without a cut in take-home pay. But the major need, by far is for economic growth—increased sales and production—if lay-offs are to be avoided. When output per man-hour rises by 2.3 percent, the real volume of sales and production must rise by close to 3.2 percent, even if there is some reduction of standard working hours, in order to prevent lay-offs of workers who are employed at present.

However, productivity is not the only factor that is increasing. Largely as a result of a growing population, there is a net increase in the labour force each year.

The civilian labour force is increasing by about 1.5 million to 2 million a year at present. To create new jobs for these new workers and returning veterans, an additional increase of about 2 percent in the real growth of the economy is needed.

Not merely to prevent a rise in unemployment, the real volume of goods and services in the American economy must expand by about 4 percent to 5 percent each year—depending on how fast output per man-hour and the civilian labour force are actually increasing.

And what about those workers who are unemployed at present? To create additional jobs for the unemployed, a still further expansion in the real volume of sales and production is required.

In the first half of 1972, there were 5 million unemployed or 5.8 percent of the civilian labour force. Productivity in the total private economy rose at an early rate of 4.7 percent—much faster than the average pace for 1947-71.

In addition, the labour force increased very rapidly, particularly because of the decline in the size of the Armed Forces.

As a result, of such conditions of high unemployment, plus very rapid increases in the labour force and productivity, the real volume of sales and production in the national economy must rise by about 7 percent for more, for at least two consecutive years, to create the needed number of new jobs, merely to begin to approach full employment.

American labour unions will continue to seek fair shares for working people in a full employment economy with rising productivity. The potential blessings of a growing, productive economy can be achieved through effective collective bargaining and Government policies aimed at full employment.

—A rise of 4 points

In February 1973, the Consumer Price Index Number for working class at the Nanded Centre with base year January to December 1961 equal to 100 was 240 being 4 points higher than that in the preceding month. The index relates to the standard of life ascertained during the year 1958-59 family living survey at the Nanded Centre.

The index number for the food group increased by 6 points to 274 due to increase in the average prices of jowar, tural, gramdal, groundnut oil, mutton (beef) and the sub-group index for fish (dry) and (fresh).

The index number for the clothing and footwear group increased by 1 point to 210 due to an increase in the average prices of dhoti, cloth for trousers and gingham cloth.

The index numbers for the fuel and light and the miscellaneous groups and housing remained stationary at 177, 182 and 141 respectively.
